

1966-67 International Hockey League

This is the first completed season that I have constructed for Plaay.com HOCKEY BLAST. I hope you enjoy it as much as I have putting this together. The process took me about 10 hours of calculating, rating and the labor of typing it onto cards.

The IHL was, in the mid 60's a mid-western bus league with seven teams located in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and one way out west, in Iowa. Teams traveled by bus and, I think, even flew to the lone team in Des Moines, Iowa. Most trips took 2 to 3 hours. The top teams in the league, at the time, were the Fort Wayne Komets, Dayton Gems, Toledo Blades and Muskegon Mohawks. Other teams that made up the circuit were the Port Huron Flags, Des Moines Oak Leafs and the expansion Columbus Checkers. The Dayton Gems won the league championship but was eliminated in four games by the Toledo Blades. Fort Wayne had a tough time with the surprising Des Moines Oak Leafs with the Komets taking the Iowa team to seven games. The Turner Cup was won by the Blades as they took Fort Wayne in six games.

Some great players played in the IHL and one player stood out, Len Thomson of the Fort Wayne Komets. He took the league's MVP and scoring championship. There were more to the Komets besides Thomson. Lionel Repka was the team's top defenseman and Fort Wayne also had a young player that eventually played in the NHL and WHA (Paul Shmyr). Broadcasting the games on local station WOWO was Bob Chase. He still does Komets games as of this writing. Dayton had a great season from Guy Trottier, who potted 71 goals that season and their top defenseman Moe Benoit, who would go on to coach the team in later years. The Gems got good goaltending from Pat Rupp, who represented the US in the 1964 Olympics and was one of a handful of US players playing professional hockey. Times have changed! On Toledo's roster was, arguably, the greatest goalie in IHL history Glenn Ramsay. His teammate Greg Jablonski, his son Greg was born after the season's end and would play goal for several teams in the National Hockey League. The Des Moines Oak Leafs, even though they were hundreds of miles away from the rest of the pack, spent several seasons in the IHL. Ivan Prediger, nicknamed Ivan The Terrible, would lead the team in penalty minutes that season with 213, a ton back in those days. However, he was not the most penalized player that season. The distinction went to Columbus Checkers player-coach Moe Machine Gun Bartoli. Bartoli led the IHL in penalty minutes with a whopping 252 minutes. When not in the penalty box, he led the Checkers in scoring with 31 goals and 72 assists for 103 points, sixth in league scoring. His Columbus team was the most penalized team in the league. His teammate, Kerry Bond, wound up as IHL Rookie of the Year, finishing with 74 points and 183 penalty minutes. Other notables include Port Huron's Frank St. Marseille and Bob McCammon.
