8 The Mystical Emerald
Dunoleg, Ireland

"O’Leary’s Brook"

The air has cleared and there's a good chance of a birdie here with a wide, inviting fairway. The green backs onto a brook, but has several run off areas.

The Mystical Emerald is located west of the town of Dunoleg, reputedly in County Longford. 'Reputedly' because visitors are never able to find Dunoleg again once they leave.

Legend has it that Dunoleg was where St Patrick spent his first night in Ireland following his return. As he walked the following day in search of snakes to banish he said to his fellow travellers “This is too good a walk to waste”, and thus decreed that a golf course be built on the land.

If this is to be believed then the first golf course in the world was built over 1,000 years before The Old Links at Musselburgh. If this is to be believed.

The place where St Patrick walked is said to hold magical powers, and many golfers playing the Emerald course have witnessed amazing bounces and unheard of scoring. This is where the 5th, 6th and 7th on the outward loop and the 13th, 14th and 15th on the inward loop were created.

Whatever the true story is, while it is unlikely to ever see a Woods or Nicklaus on the fairways of the Mystical Emerald - if you ignore Seamus Woods the head groundsman that is - many a golfer has enjoyed their experiences both on the course and in the half-way house and clubhouse.

So treat the Mystical Emerald as a magical treat which may never be experienced again.

LOCAL RULES

1. Leprehauns are designated an immovable obstruction.

2. Upon completion of the 9th hole, a mandatory stop is required in Tipsy McStaggers pub located to the right of the green. Green fees for the inward 9 are valid for the following day.

3. The tradition for buying a round following a hole in one does not apply to the 6th and 14th.

4. If a snake is spotted on the course, would the player immediately return to Tipsys for further treatment.

5. Any pots of gold found on the course following a rain shower remain the property of the club.

6. Please refrain from asking Clodagh or Oisin at the bar the meaning of the hole names. A glossary is provided below.
